

"Child Care Access Means Parents in Schools" is a federal program to support the participation of low-income parents in post-secondary education by providing child care services on campus. For an explanation of the program, please see the Department of Education's website. Furman University does not receive funds through this program.